Four priorities model (Alex Venet)

Not a one-size-fits-all checklist, but a way to think about what matters and why

Predictability

What might this look like?

- Establishing routines to build a sense of normalcy
- Responding in predictable ways
- Planning ahead for dysregulation

What might this look like?

- Investing in relationships with and between others
- Being deliberately positive instead of neutral

Connection

Flexibility

What might this look like?

- Observing and adjusting targets and approaches
- Allowing for multiple paths towards demonstrating learning

What might this look like?

- Authentic choices
- Practice & model consent
- Opt-in not opt-out policies
- Minimizing compliance for compliance-sake

Empowerment

Creating Trauma-Informed Teaching and Learning Environments: Self-Assessment Questions for Educators

<https://traumainformedteachingblog.files.wordpress.com/2020/03/titl-self-assessment-for-educators-3.20-1.pdf>

Principle 1: Physical, Emotional, Social, and Academic Safety

Key Question: To what extent does the learning environment ensure the physical, emotional, social, and academic safety of students, including feeling safe to make and learn from mistakes?

Principle 2: Trustworthiness and Transparency

Key Question: To what extent do learning policies and practices maximize trustworthiness and transparency by making expectations clear, ensuring consistency in practice, maintaining appropriate boundaries, and minimizing disappointment?

Principle 3: Support and Connection

Key Question: To what extent are students linked with appropriate peer and professional resources to help them succeed academically, personally, and professionally?

Principle 4: Collaboration and Mutuality

Key Question: To what extent do educators and students share common goals and share power?

Principle 5: Empowerment, Voice, and Choice

Key Question: To what extent are students viewed as experts of their own experiences and learning and as such are empowered to make choices and develop confidence and skills?

Principle 6: Social Justice

Key Question: To what extent are policies and practices responsive to issues of privilege and oppression and respectful of diverse individual and collective experiences and identities?

Principle 7: Resilience, Growth, and Change

Key Question: To what extent do policies and practices recognize and facilitate student resilience, growth, and change?
